

Biography

Nicolas Kolovos (b. 1973) is a film director, script writer and playwright. He has written and directed numerous short films which have been featured at several international film festivals and won many awards. In April 2016 he was awarded the Iris, the most prestigious film award of Greece, by the Greek Film Academy for his short film Fig. He has also directed television dramas and documentaries for SVT (Sweden's public Television). Nicolas Kolovos also works as a playwright and has written plays for Riksteatern (National Touring Theatre/National Theatre Company in Sweden), Angereds teater (non-government sponsored theater) and Sveriges Radio Drama (Sweden's national radio broadcaster). His films and plays often use dark humour to show people at risk, and treats subjects such as identity and alienation.
